

Guide to Harm Reduction

Reducing Harm and Improving Health for People Who Use Drugs and for the Community

Course Overview

Harm reduction incorporates evidence-based and evidence-informed strategies from safer use, to managed use, to abstinence to meet drug users “where they’re at,” addressing conditions of use along with the use itself.

In this course you will learn the benefits of harm reduction and how strategies can be applied to reduce harm and further complications from drug use and reduce the harm and risks to the community. The course will dispel some common myths of harm reduction. Participants will gain an understanding of harm reduction principles and services and be able to define what it means to “practice” harm reduction.

What People Are Saying

"Had a change of mindset and heart regarding some aspects of harm reduction. I now know more about harm reduction, the tools it has to offer, how it can help those with SUD, and will be able to apply what I have learned."

- Define harm reduction as it is used in engaging people who use drugs into services and support.
- List a minimum of four benefits of harm reduction for the individual and/or community.
- Discuss the history of harm reduction and where it fits today in the continuum of SUD treatment and recovery.
- Identify the principles and philosophy of harm reduction and examples of harm reduction tools and services.
- Differentiate an effective Harm Reduction practice in contrast to a practice which does not apply harm reduction principles to the services / tools.

"The dispelling myths section about harm was helpful, especially being presented with the research and learning how harm reduction strategies encourages people who use drugs to seek treatment and reduces the risks to the general community."
